

A New Edition of
A Primer of Mathematical Writing
by Steven G. Kranz

My first edition of this book was published in 1996—just twenty years ago. But the intervening twenty years have seen tumultuous change in the writing landscape. Now there is the Internet and all the features adherent to it. There are blogs and chat rooms and many other features. Now there is print-on-demand, and electronic publishing, and Open Access journals. The list could go on and on.

I want my new edition to take into account all these developments. And I am anxious for people to write to me and suggest topics that need to be covered.

I look forward to hearing from you. My email is `sk@math.wustl.edu` and my phone is 510-875-8972.
